

Explore beyond the exterior at the UA Myers School of Art

Akron, OH, Sept. 25, 2014 – Can an extrinsic veneer manipulate an internal element or an audience? Contrarily, can it expose a facet of truth or existence?

The Advanced Graphic Design class at The University of Akron's Myers School of Art will be hosting an exhibition of structure and imagery entitled, "Facade." Developed from the medley of the themes of corruption, censorship, filters, and layers, "Facade" encompasses the students' interpretations of the relationship between exteriors and the internal substance.

The exhibition will be open to the public Nov. 24 through Dec. 4. Visitors at the University of Akron's Myers School of Art are invited to experience the exhibition comprised of the individual works the students have created and developed throughout the semester.

The students have designed the show's theme and content, as well as their individual displays throughout the course of the Fall semester.

Thursday, Dec. 4 from 5:30 to 7 p.m., the artists' reception will be held in the Upper and Lower Atrium and Projects Gallery of Folk Hall. The reception is free to the public and food will be provided.

For more information, call The University of Akron's Myers School of Art at 330-972-6030.

#

Calendar listings:

Façade

Presented by the Advanced Graphic Design students at the Mary Schiller Myers School of Art at The University of Akron

- Exhibition; Nov. 24-Dec 4, 2014, Upper and Lower Atrium and Projects Gallery of Folk Hall, 150 E. Exchange St., Akron
- Closing Reception: Thursday, Dec. 4, 5:30 to 7 p.m., Folk Hall

Liquid Layers by Ling Pan (Image attached)